Protracted vigor.

His treaties is packed with instances and is profusely illustrated with the oddest facial, contortions and contrasts of his pencil. His idea is that the spartures of the nose are formed for the express purpose of cleansing the air of its impurities, thus fitting it to be taken into the respiratory organs. If taken through the mouth, all these impurities go into the lungs, and breed all kinds of disease. Nightmare and unrefreshing sleep are caused by breathing through the mouth. Snorers generally have this habit. These people do not know that their mouths are open, for they shut the instantly on awaking. But the dryness of the mouth and threat tells the story, as the saliva thus is exheads raised enough to inclue the teeth to meet. No pillews is a bad usage, letting the head sink to a horrizontal line said Josie, after a while. with the body; but the fashionable square pillows are also very hurtful, which elevates the shoulder with the head. Babies should never be kept closely to their mothers by night, the smothering warmth inducing the habit of opening the mouth to breathe. Nor should their faces be covered in sleep, warmth so much as free, fresh air. The he was ever doing anything but play. Indians understand all about this and in their native separation from the whiskey drinking of their white neighbors, they would seem to have been about as exempt from bodily ailments as the wild animals of their prairies.

Mr. Catlin very likely has carried his pet notion full as far as it will bear, when he says curvature of the spine, other things, that perhaps some inventive Yankee will give us a patent mouthcap which may put an end at least to that social nocturnal unisance, an incorrigible snorer.

A Bome a Thousand Years Old. The loftiests house, and the most perfect in the matter of architecture I have ever seen, was that which a wood-chopper occupied with his family one win-ter in the forest of Santa Cruz County. It was the cavity of a redwood tree, two hundred and forty feet in height. Fire had eaten away the trunk at the base, until a circular room had been formed, sixteen feet in diameter. At twenty pegs, and a few cooking utensils upon other pegs, that house lacked no essen-tial thing. The woodman was in possession of a house which had been a thousand years in process of building. Now and then a deer came out into the openings, and at no great distance, quail, rabbits, and pigeons could be found. What did this man want more than Nature funished him? He had a house with a "cupola" two hundered and forty feet high, and game at the cost of taking it. No fact is more evident than that, if wheat, with which is mixed the seeds of weeds, chess, barley, rye or other grains is used for seed, the crop harvested will not be good clean wheat. It is equally certain that poorly developed, unripen-ed or diseased wheat kernels cannot be when he says curvature of the spine, idiocy, deafness, polypus in the nose, malformation and premature decay of the teeth, toothache, neuralgia, and three-fourths of the mental and physical deformities and premature deaths, from conception to old age, are caused, or greatly aggravated, by these wrong modes of sleeping; but this little book is well worth reading, by young mothers especially; and it suggest, among many other things, that perhaps some inventhan to rely on that which is not suitable for the purpose. In all ordinary cases the fact that such is the best you have is not a sufficient reason. Care in selecting varieties is also important. If one variety has failed in your vicinity, year after year, try something else, no mater how good a reputation this variety may have formerly had.

The fact that white wheat brings a higher price in the market than the amber of red wheat of the same quality, should be taken into consideration. Of two varieties, equal in hardness, etc., of course the white should be selected. In getting wheat from a distance, if you want it earlier than you now have feet or more from the ground was a want it earlier than you now have knot hole, which afforded egress for the smoke.
